

A Fireside Chat with Dr. Jolene Lin and Professor Tommy Koh celebrating the launch of
Governing Climate Change:
Global Cities and Transnational Lawmaking

24 January 2019 (Thursday)
NUS Law (Bukit Timah Campus), Block B Level 2, Staff Lounge

Governing Climate Change: Global Cities and Transnational Lawmaking (Cambridge University Press) offers an exciting new perspective on climate change law and policy by focusing on cities as transnational lawmakers. Jolene Lin explores how cities are no longer just places to live in. They are significant actors on the global stage, and this trend is most prominent in the world of transnational climate change governance. By investigating how cities are developing and implementing norms, practices and voluntary standards through global networks, this book offers novel insights about the reconfiguration of the state and the blurring of the public/private and domestic/international distinctions.
