Double Degree Programme (DDP) FAQs

(Not applicable to Yale-Law DDP students)

Prospective students

1. Can I apply for a DDP which is not listed in Concurrent, Double Degrees & Special Programmes?

Law only offers structured DDPs and does not allow for ad-hoc degree combinations with the Law degree. This is because the LLB curriculum is structured to ensure students are able to meet all requirements of the Ministry and qualify for legal practice. The current structured DDPs with Law have been agreed after considerable discussions by the respective schools and the university committee managing educational policies and consultation with the various ministries.

Current students

Programme Requirements

2. I am a Law-Biz DDP student. What is the difference between BBA (Hons)/BAC (Hons) and BBA/BAC?

Law-Biz DDP students will be admitted into BBA or BAC by default. In the subsequent semesters when students has begun to read Biz modules and completed certain amount of MCs, they will be given a choice to opt for the Honours programme or remain in the non-honours track. Students whose home faculty is BIZ do not have the option of a non-honours track for their home degree.

3. I am a Direct Entry Law DDP student. Can I restructure the schedule of modules in the programme (i.e., I intend to read certain 2nd degree Partner Faculty modules first, before completing the Law Compulsory modules?)

Restructuring of the schedule of modules in the DDP structure is not allowed. Students whose home faculty is BIZ do not have the option of a non-honours track for their home degree. Students must complete Law compulsory modules first before they proceed with the requirements of their 2nd degree. This is because lower-level Law modules are pre-requisites or co-requisites to higher-level Law modules in the LLB program. In addition, Law DDP students are not allowed to read any of the Law Electives and/or Common Modules unless they have completed their Law compulsory modules.

4. During Online Module Registration and Online Add/Drop, can I select Law Electives and/or Common Modules that do not meet my programme requirements?

Law DDP students should refer to their respective programme website and read only Law Electives and/or Common Modules that meet their programme requirements. The system will not allocate Law Electives and/or Common Modules that are not part of your programme requirements and you will be required to re-select the required modules at the next registration period.

5. Are students at a disadvantage because they read fewer Law electives?

Generally, this would depend on the hiring organizations. Most organizations consider many other factors aside from the number of Law elective DDP student reads. Furthermore, DDP students may benefit from a cross-disciplinary curriculum.

6. Can I apply for a DDP which is not listed in Concurrent, Double Degrees & Special Programmes?

Ad-hoc DDPs are not open to Law students as the LLB curriculum is structured to ensure students are able to meet all requirements of the Ministry and qualify for legal practice. The current structured DDPs with Law have been agreed after considerable discussions by the respective schools and the university committee managing educational policies and consultation with the various ministries.

7. I am a Law student in a DDP. Am I eligible to exercise S/U option on my non-Law modules?

Law DDP students are eligible for the 12 MCs S/U options which can be exercised in any semester during their candidature, on non-Law modules that count solely towards their second degree requirements. Law DDP students may wish to check with their non-Law Faculty on their eligibility to exercise the S/U option. However, non-Law modules which are used to fulfil both the LLB and second degree requirements (i.e. common modules) will have to remain letter graded.

Online Module Registration

8. Students are to select module(s) to meet Double Degree Programme Requirements during online module registration exercise. If the Office of Academic Affairs finds that you selected a module which is not able to fulfil the DDP requirements, the module(s) will not be allocated to students.

Student Exchange Programme

9. Are students in the DDP eligible for SEP? If so, when do they go for an exchange?

Students in the DDP are eligible for SEP opportunities. However, by nature of the programme structure, you will be on SEP with partner faculty instead of LAW. DDP students can only go for SEP in Year 4 after taking one year of partner faculty core modules. They then apply in their Year 3 for an exchange programme in Year 4.

10. How does the exchange affect my overall grades (i.e. for both degrees)?

Modules read on exchange do not count towards class of honours. You only transfer the credits earned but not its grades.

Exit

11. Are students able to withdraw from the DDP and how do we go about it?

To exit from the programme, you need only to email us your confirmation. The window period to withdraw is from the date of exam results release to the 1st week of the following semester. This policy is set by Registrar's Office and can be found at this link

12. I received a letter indicating that I failed to meet the academic continuation requirement for my Law DDP. How can I go about appealing against this?

Students are required to write to Law Undergraduate Programme lawundergrad@nus.edu.sg and provide justifications. The faculty will review the student's case and advise them accordingly.

Career Prospects

13. What is the career prospect for DDP graduates?

Knowledge and training in a secondary discipline (e.g. Business Admin, Economics, Life Sciences) is always beneficial as it widens the perspectives and fills the vacuum for talents who can leverage on cross-disciplinary opportunities

Concurrent Degree Programme (CDP) FAQs

Programme Requirements

1. What is the difference between CDP and DDP?

Students who complete the CDP are awarded with an Undergraduate LL.B. (Honours) degree as well as a Master Degree whereas students in a DDP will graduate with two Undergraduate degrees.

2. Can I restructure the schedule of modules in the programme?

No restructuring in schedule of modules is allowed. Students are required to complete Law's curriculum first before moving on to read MPP modules.

3. Are students at a disadvantage because they read fewer Law electives?

Generally, this would depend on the hiring organizations. Most organizations consider many other factors aside from the number of Law elective CDP student reads. Furthermore, students from a cross-disciplinary curriculum may benefit from this.

4. I am a Law student in a CDP. Am I eligible to exercise S/U option on my non-Law modules?

CDP students may wish to check with their non-Law Faculty on their eligibility to exercise the S/U option.

5. Once I have commenced onto MPP (postgraduate programme), can I read Law modules as Cross Faculty Module (CFM) to fulfil the MPP's graduation requirements?

Each Graduate School has their own policies on CFMs. Students are required to check and seek approval from LKYSPP before module enrolment.

Student Exchange Programme

6. Are students in the CDP eligible for SEP? If so, when do they go for an exchange?

Students in the CDP are eligible for SEP opportunities with Law Partner Universities but only for one semester (either in Sem 1 or 2) in Year 3 as compared to a normal 4-year LLB programme.

7. How does the exchange affect my overall grades (i.e. for both degrees)?

Modules read on exchange do not count towards class of honours. You only transfer the credits earned but not its grades.

Exit

8. Are students able to withdraw from the CDP and how do we go about it?

To exit from the programme, you need only to email us your confirmation. The window period to withdraw is 1st week of following semester. This policy is set by Registrar's Office and can be found at this link

Career Prospects

9. What is the career prospect for CDP graduates?

Candidates can look forward to fielding positions in public Law, international Law and governance, among others. Some of our distinguished graduates now hold leading positions in government, not-for-profit organizations, NGOs and public service in the form of eminent judges, Members of Parliament, diplomats, researchers, policy analysts, professors and Law practitioners.

10. Would a CDP graduate have an advantage in joining the civil service? How would we weigh up against PSC scholars?

Recruitment into civil service is solely based on merits. MPP graduates will be equipped with rigorous training, relevant skills and aptitude to understand the legal, policy, and practical dimensions of governance and national, regional, and international policy-making. This could be their competitive advantage over other candidates, including PSC Scholars.
